THE KEY TO THOMAS'S HEART.

BY WILL CARLETON.
[Author of "Betsey and I are Out."] Ride with me, Uncle Nathan?
I don't care an I do.
My poor old heart's in a hurry; I'm anxious to get through.
My soul outwakes my body; my legs are far from strong.
An' it's mighty kind of you, doctor, to help the old man along.
I'm some at full of bustle; there's business to be done.
I've just been out to the village to see my youngest son.
You used to know him, doctor, ere he his age did get.
An' if I ain't mistaken, you sometimes see him yet.
We took him through his boyhood, with never a ground for fears;
But somehow he stumbled over his early man-hood's years.
The landmarks that he showed him, he seems to wander from.
Though in his heart there was never a better boy than Tom.
He was quick o' mind an' body in all he done an' said;
But all the gold he reached for, it seemed to turn to lead.
The devil of grog it caught him, an' held him, though the while
He has never grudging his parents a pleasant word an' smile.
The devil of grog it caught him, an' then he turned an' said,
By that which fed from off him, he henceforth would be fed;
An' that which lived upon him, should give him a livin' o'er;
An' so he keeps that doggerly that's next to Wilson's store.
But how'er he's wandered, I've al'ays so far heard
That he had a sense of honor, and never broke his word;
An' his mother, from the good Lord, she says, has understood
That, if he agrees to be sober, he'll keep the promise good.
An' so when just this mornin' these poor old eyes o' mine
Saw all the women round him, a coaxin' him to sign,
An' when the widow Adams let fly a homespun pray,
An' he looked kind o' wild like an' started un-ware.
An' glanced at her an' instant, an' then at his kegs o' rum,
I somehow knew in a minute the turnin' point had come;
An' he would be as good a man as ever yet there's been,
Or else let go forever, and sink in the sea of sin.
An' I know, whatever efforts might carry him or fail,
There was only one could help God to turn the waverin' scale;
An' I skulked away in a hurry—I was bound to do my part—
To get the mother, who carries the key to Thomas's heart.
She's gettin' old an' feeble, an' childless in her talk;
An' we've no horse an' buggy, an' she will have to walk;
But she would be fast to come, sir, the gracious chance to seize,
If she had to crawl to Thomas upon her hands an' knees.
Crawl?—walk? No, not if I know it! So set your mind at rest.
Why hang it! I'm Tom's customer, and said to be his best!
But if this blooded horse here will show his usual power,
Poor Tom shall see his mother in less than half an hour.

VIRGINIA CHEMICAL AND MINING COMPANY.—A bill incorporating certain persons, with power to develop by chemical, manufacturing and mining processes the mineral and other resources of the State, by mining the native sulphur and other ore earths, rocks, and minerals of Virginia, and by manufacturing them and other materials into sulphuric acid and other chemicals, fertilizers, and other useful products, which had previously passed the House, has also passed the Senate. Some im-material amendments were made in the latter body, which make it necessary for the bill to be sent back to the House. We give the two following sections of the bill:
2. The capital stock of this company shall be $100,000 in 1,000 shares of $100 each, and the works of the company shall be established in Richmond, or such other place or places in the State as the company shall determine.
3. In consideration of the important objects and purposes of this company, to wit: The development of the hidden and neglected sources of wealth, and the inauguration of new and useful branches of manufacture, and as an inducement for the investment of foreign capital in such enterprises in the State, its property shall be exempt from any additional taxation above the present rate of fifty cents upon the one hundred dollars for the term of ten years from the date of this act, and thereafter shall be subject as to all its property to the same rate of taxation as is imposed upon other like property in the State.—Lynch, Rep.

THE ORIGIN OF THE VENUSES.—The Venus of the Milo has now been joined at the Louvre by a sister goddess who rather copies than rivals her charms—the Venus of Falerone. This statue, of Parian marble, was found in 1836 in the town of Falerone among the ruins of an ancient theatre. The attitude, the movement, and even the drapery of the newcomer closely resemble those of the Venus of Milo. It is conjectured that these two statues, as well as the Venus de la Pigna in the Vatican, are alike in attention, and illustrate the same myth, and it is further surmised by connoisseurs, notably by M. Ravaisson, the curator of the Antiques of the Louvre, that each of these beautiful creations was not originally an isolated figure, but belonged to a group completed by a statue of Mars, such as the two groups of Venus and Mars, to be seen in the Museum degli Uffizi at Florence. Some color of probability is given to the conjecture by the fact that the left side of the Venus of Milo, which would, in a group be concealed by the form of Mars, is less carefully chiseled than the rest of the statue.
